

Manfred Hintermair, Ph.D., from 1994 to 2016 he was a Professor of Psychology at the Department for Special Education at the University of Education in Heidelberg, Germany. His primary interest in research is family socialisation and deafness, and socio-emotional development of deaf and hard of hearing children. He has published numerous books and papers, and has held many presentations on deaf education and development. He has been retired since 2016, but is still involved in several smaller projects.